Income by year (2022–2025; earlier years not disclosed)

Notes. All figures in US dollars. n/d = not disclosed. OpenAI is private and has not published financial statements; 2024–2025 revenue, total costs, operating loss and net loss come from audited statements obtained by Ed Zitron and verified by the Financial Times (June 2026). Earlier figures are press estimates (mainly The Information). *Derived: other opex = total opex – compute.

Compute. 2024: ~$7B of cloud compute rented from Microsoft (Epoch AI estimate from The Information/NYT reporting; includes ~$1.8B inference). †2025: ~$17.2B paid to Microsoft for computing, research and related services, which may include more than compute. 2025 R&D was $19.18B and sales & marketing nearly $6B.

Net loss. Roughly $30B of the 2025 net loss is a one-time, non-cash charge tied to fair-value changes in convertible interests during the move to a Public Benefit Corporation; excluding it the loss is ~$8B. The ~$5B 2024 net loss is from press reporting and is smaller than the audited operating loss, so sources may not reconcile. 2021 loss is inferred from 2022 being roughly double the prior year.

Funding. 2015 figure was pledges to the nonprofit, not cash received. 2025 Series F was paid in tranches; an Oct 2025 employee share sale at a $500B valuation is excluded as secondary. A $122B Series G at an $852B valuation followed in March 2026 (outside this table). 2023 revenue estimates vary from ~$1B booked to ~$1.6B run-rate.
